

BRYAN RUBY

BRYAN RUBY is a trailblazing LGBTQ country artist and former pro baseball player. A current finalist for the John Lennon International Songwriting Prize and Season 7 Winner of the talent-search competition 'Nashville Rising Song', Bryan exploded onto the scene with critically-acclaimed "introspective and relatable storytelling" (The Nash News) on his breakout single 'Left Field' and debut EP 'Diamonds Are Forever' in 2023. A cowriter on over 25 popular country and pop songs, Bryan also dedicates considerable time speaking to businesses, colleges, and Pride groups for his 501(c)(3) nonprofit 'Proud To Be In Baseball', pushing to continue the progress he made after coming out on the cover of USA Today as the only active gay pro baseball player during the 2021 season. Ruby's inspirational story in country music and baseball have earned him a spot on Out Magazine's prestigious 'Out 100' list as well as the Rising Star Award from The Foundation for Love and Acceptance in Nashville.
