

DEV

ABOUT

Los Angeles rapper, singer, and songwriter Dev (aka Devin Star Tailles) makes electronic, hip-hop influenced, and dance-oriented pop music based around her deadpan vocal delivery. Born in 1989,

Dev grew up in Manteca, California, where she focused on swimming, band, and choir during high school. It was while studying English and art history at San Joaquin Delta College that Dev posted a cover of Amy Winehouse's "Blonde Trick" to her MySpace page. The track caught the attention of the alternative hip-hop duo the Cataracs. After moving to Los Angeles in 2009,

Dev began collaborating with the Cataracs on several tracks, including "2Nite," "Fireball," and "Booty Bounce," the latter of which was sampled by Far East Movement for their hit single "Like a G6." A year later, she signed to Universal Republic and released "Bass Down Low," which charted on Billboard's Hot 100. In 2011, she delivered her debut full-length album, The Night the Sun Came Up, which also included the singles "In The Dark" and "Naked," featuring Enrique Iglesias. That same year, Dev gave birth to her first child, a daughter, with her pro-skateboarding fiancé, Jimmy Gorecki. In 2014, Dev returned with two EPs Bittersweet July and Pt 2

Featuring the NanosauR-produced single "kids." 2015 saw the rise of Benny Cassette produced single "Honey Dip" which was featured prominently in Teen Vogue, In Style and more. In 2016 Dev released the single #1 featuring Nef the Pharaoh which skyrocketed on Rhythmic Radio to #15! Dev is now a Radio Host at Apple Music.
